

2019 ARCHITECTURAL PORTFOLIO

William W. Caudill Citation

Irwin M. Jacobs Elementary School—New Bedford, Massachusetts
Turowski2 Architecture, Inc.—Marion, Massachusetts

“A cohesive design concept that connects to local history, traditions and context. Especially thoughtful student-scaled spaces include window niches for one or two students to larger bays for small class collaboration. Wonderfully situated roof garden, with a fully engaged Fab lab, along with the positioning of outdoor green spaces and play areas maximize the opportunities of this site by atypically engaging the outdoors in a dense urban setting. Demonstrates a full measure of devotion to its maritime theme, its relationship to the surrounding neighborhood and a plethora of diverse spaces, colors and textures – a remarkable composition.”—2019 jury

Louis I. Kahn Citation

Lakeland Community College, Health Technologies Center—Kirtland, Ohio
AECOM—Cleveland, Ohio
Associated Firms: Health Education & Research Associates (Laboratory Planning)

“This project exemplifies how to make the most of a renovation and expansion project: improve site conditions, expand space for social connection, enhance learning opportunities both spatially and technologically. The addition elegantly engages the site and wraps the existing building, focusing on the incorporation of natural light, subtle color, connection to nature and social spaces, to promote overall wellness.”—2019 jury

Special Citations

Wilburton Elementary School—Bellevue, Washington
BLRB Architects—Tacoma, Washington

“Design details ensure every space is a learning space, with spatial attributes like direct access outdoors and integrated teaching surfaces, that ensure that learning can happen fluidly. Truly creative in the quality of space and planning inside and out. An expressive and inspiring place to learn.”—2019 jury

Williams College Bookstore—Williamstown, Massachusetts
CambridgeSeven—Cambridge, Massachusetts

*“Small scale but detail-packed, exhibiting a high-degree of craft, moments of human-scale design, and a thoughtful approach to welcoming the community into an institutional building. Connects the indoors and outdoors through the use of built in elements such as window seats and shelving. A little gem of a building that enhances its community and exclaims its youthful vitality simultaneously.”
—2019 jury*

Creighton University School of Dentistry—Omaha, Nebraska
RDG Planning & Design—Omaha, Nebraska

“Diverse learning with environments for different types of specialized instruction and one on one collaboration. Higher-bay floors offer future flexibility as technology and equipment change. Thoughtful details like the stone and wood bench at the base of the open stair humanize a large-scale, technically-oriented building. Simulated labs and professional environments transcend the typical academic setting, enhancing the experience of students, clinicians and faculty alike.”—2019 jury

Special Citations Continued

Academies of Loudoun—Leesburg, Virginia

Stantec—Arlington, Virginia

“The strategy to spatially integrate three technology-based programs in a single facility offers students the chance to engage with different curricula. There is a consistent emphasis on learning, visible through the Commons, the Maker labs, courtyard terraces and the autoshop, celebrating the concept of breaking free of the stigmas surrounding technical career pursuits. The project doesn’t simply accommodate CTE, it is designed to truly engage students.”—2019 jury

Pre-K/Early-Childhood Citation

The Franklin School, Early Learning Center—Spartanburg, South Carolina

RDG Planning & Design—Omaha, Nebraska

“Nicely scaled with a unified use of color as a focal point and inspiration both inside and out. Intentional use of color and texture at the indoor play area.”—2019 jury

CannonDesign—Chicago, Illinois

Associated Firms: S2O (Food Service Consultant), Arc Design Resources Inc. (Engineer – Civil), Cord Construction (General Contractor)

“A student-led visioning process has produced a design that encourages interaction, balances space for individuals and groups, and has a sense of whimsy (see primary color-framed geometric windows with deep window seats). The approach to this project was to create a flexible, dynamic, inviting, and engaging environment for elementary students. It achieves those goals with a high level of sophistication.”—2019 jury

Coolidge Corner School—Brookline, Massachusetts

HMFH Architects, Inc.—Cambridge, Massachusetts

“Great sustainable use of site in an urban setting. The new addition integrates contextually through materiality, and incorporates volumetrical variation and scale using fenestration to define spaces, create views for connectivity, and bring in natural light. Outdoor classrooms are engaging, and along with the indoors, utilize diverse spatial characteristics. Playful use of color and natural light to enliven space.”—2019 jury
